What should be Kept in Mind...

The important point to note out here is that the activity should not tire out the child and he should not feel fatigued. It is essential to ensure that the child is full of energy else he would not be interested in anything that is going on around him. And disinterest will not help him to learn anything.

Intelligent Design...

Our preschool curriculum is intelligent so that the fun way in which the activities are carried out excites the child. When the child is excited, they will naturally learn faster too.

Teaching in the Fun Way ...

The projects in our preschool curriculum constitute of activities that involve creative art. They have a lot of activity pages, work sheet, poems, rhythmic songs and crafts classes that are carried out in groups. Everything is taught through fun games so that the kids are interested in what is going on and simultaneously learn from it.

Activities should Develop Skills

In a preschool curriculum all the activities are so designed so that the child gets an opportunity to develop his skills. This involves the creative, apprehensive and the motor skills. Focus on an all round development. The objective is to involve the lessons in the later stage of the kid's academic life in school.

Curriculum Should Start with Basic Skills ...

The preschool curriculum should start with the basic skills at the onset. It should all begin with the identification of the objects, shapes and colours. Through objects, models, pictures or visuals on the screen, acquaint the kids with the real world around. After this is done the teachers focus on the association part.
